McDivitt Law Firm

CASE STUDIES

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Before homepage split testing, our projects with McDivitt Law Firm included building the website, SEO, market research, brand + logo, integration with intake and case management software, landing pages, pay-per-click management, lead nurturing campaigns, social media, copywriting, toolkits/ebooks, yearly strategic planning, chat function, and video strategy.

To continue website optimization and lead generation, we tested two new versions of the homepage. With a more prominent form “above the fold,” we found that the conversion rate and amount of leads from the homepage increased and the overall performance of leads from forms increased.

ABOUT THE CLIENT

McDivitt Law Firm is one of the largest personal injury firms in Colorado. Much of the firm’s success is built upon a central tenet that all individuals have accessibility to legal representation whether one can afford it or not. With more than 80 staff and attorneys, McDivitt Law Firm prides itself on its ability to provide first-class legal representation to each of its clients, in a way that is affordable to anyone.

CHALLENGE

On the homepage, there were three different ways a visitor could convert to a lead:

- Beginning a chat
- Clicking a call-to-action to “Request a Free Case Evaluation”
- Completing a form at the bottom of the page

Since the homepage is the most visited page on the site, our goal was to generate more leads from the homepage without the visitor having to scroll down or click to a new page.

SOLUTION

News of a local water contamination case broke, and McDivitt began accepting cases for a future lawsuit. Knowing this was a huge opportunity for McDivitt Law Firm and we had an immediate need to improve the conversion rate of the homepage, we used the simple design of the “Free Case Evaluation” as the above-the-fold design of the homepage. We were able to make this change within 24 hours to coincide with the launch of the new campaign.

Despite this design being very simple, we saw an immediate improvement of the homepage conversion rate and began a complete redesign of the top of the homepage.
